'Hot spot' in town

KURT OVERMEYER next to one of the new "wi-fi" antennas now providing wireless internet access in West Sacramento's business district. The antenna is one of a pair mounted on city hall's rooftop. Instead of being bolted to the roof -- causing concerns about roof leaks -- the antennas are anchored by cinder blocks, rendering them stable in the face of 200 mile-per-hour winds. This antenna "talks" to another on top of the state Department of General Services "ziggurat" building.

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

This morning, city officials were scheduled to host a "wire-cutting" in celebration of new, free "wireless" internet access for a chunk of West Sacramento's business district. New transmitters mounted on the "ziggurat" building near River Walk Park and atop city hall should be up and running by the time you read this.

"It will be much faster than dial-up internet connection," said Kurt Overmeyer of the city's redevelopment agency, speaking computer-ese. "A dial-up connection is usually at 56K. The worst case for this is about one megabyte per second."

That means that people used to accessing the internet through a normal phone line can expect to do it for free, and at least 15 times faster, if they have the right hardware and are close enough to the West Capitol corridor between the river and West Capitol Avenue.

How much does it cost to get a "wireless" connection for your laptop computer, desktop computer or other internet device?

"I just bought one today for $19.99," said Overmeyer. "The prices range from $19.99 up to about $100, depending on quality."

The new program was promoted by Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and announced at his "State of the City" address as a way of making the city's business district more friendly to business. And it won't cost as much as you might think.

"For the installation and for a year's worth of internet service, we budgeted $15,000," said Overmeyer. "We're coming in under budget."

The city is "the first in the region" to offer such service, said public information officer Art Schroeder. The new "hot zone" should be accessible from the river to about Harbor Boulevard, he said, as well as about as far south as the freeway and a comparable distance north of West Capitol.

'Measure K' money well short of expected pace

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

When West Sacramento voters approved a local sales tax increase in November of 2002, they were enticed by promises of street repair, parks improvements, and additional money for police and fire services. That money is coming – but at a much slower pace than projected.

The city's finance department reports that the current half-percent sales tax override authorized by Measure K has brought in a little over half of the $18 million in new sales tax revenues expected so far. Plans to improve local roads and city services are being slowed to let the money catch up.

Why weren't the projections more accurate?

Finance Director Leigh Keicher told the News-Ledger that it wasn't simply a matter of plugging a few numbers into a few formulas to determine how much money Measure K would bring in. The state's sales tax distribution rules didn't make it that easy.

"Local sales tax is one percent," he said. "That's based on the point of sale as defined by the state. In the case of a retail business like Ramos Oil, the point of sale is their office. So we would keep that tax. But there is also a 'district tax,' which is taxed at the point of delivery. If (goods) are delivered somewhere else, somebody else gets the tax money."

In other words, with a "district" sales tax, West Sacramento gains if goods are delivered to West Sacramento. But it gains nothing when goods are delivered from West Sacramento to some other place. And in West Sacramento's particular case, said Keicher, it has turned out that West Sacramento ships out more stuff than it ships in.

"That data was not knowable by anybody in advance," said Keicher. "We asked the state board, and they said they didn't know a lot about it. We could have been a winner instead of a loser, if we had more products delivered to us instead of us delivering more products out."

When the city made its first projections about how much sales tax revenue it would gain by hiking the local sales tax, said Keicher, local officials assumed that the city would neither gain nor lose in the "district tax" calculations. It turns out the city – long proud of its "business-to-business" sales sector – ships a lot of things to out-of-town buyers.

But the revenue numbers should soon come up, said Keicher, giving the city more money to use to fix roads and promote other city needs.

"When IKEA comes, we'll get both their local and their district sales tax," he said. And money expected from the sales tax increase should reach its projected levels about a year after that retailer opens, he said. The Swedish-owned furnishings store is expected to swing open its doors next year. The store will be part of a Reed Avenue center to include Home Depot and a "Super" Wal-Mart.

Measure K calls for a temporary, ten-year sales tax override of half a percent, falling to an indefinite, quarter-percent override after ten years. The override was expected to add $5 million to city coffers annually, "but now it appears that we will not reach this level of revenue until IKEA has been open for a year or so," reports Keicher's department.

Measure J – the companion ballot measure to Measure K – designated the programs that would benefit from the sales tax increase. It listed a wide variety of programs from parks, to a senior center, to public safety and local street repair.

Drive & dump

Twice a year, the City of West Sacramento offers a chance for its residents to unload some of their junk. Judging from the line of cars and pickup trucks waiting on West Capitol Avenue, last week's "Residential Recycling Drop-Off" program was a resounding success.

"We actually increased the number of vehicles visiting by about 30 percent from last spring," said Denise Kotko of the city's refuse and recycling division. "We had a total count of 1,267 cars."

Those cars came over a period of 20 hours spread over five days – meaning that city workers processed more than a car every minute the drop-off site at Tower Court was open.

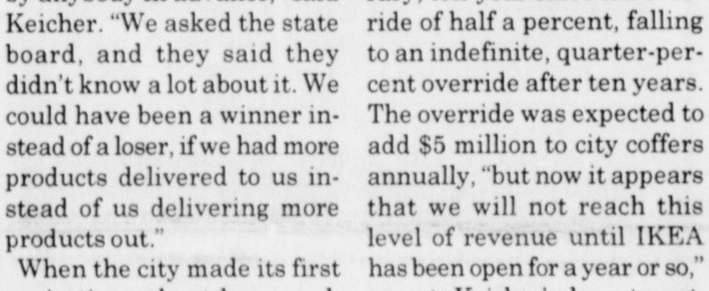

The program targets household items that are too big to fit in the regular garbage can program.

So what did residents bring to drop off?

"Metal!" said Kotko. "They brought metal poles – I don't know where they get them – plus barbecues, bed frames, washers and dryers. All of the metal will be recycled. This year, we added computers and televisions to the list of things we can accept. In the past, those were considered hazardous waste, but we found a vendor who can take them. Maybe that is a reason why we had more cars visiting this time."

The next "drop-off" day will be scheduled for September, said Kotko, although organizers may be looking for a new place to host the event. The city-owned property traditionally used for the drop-off days is in the process of being sold, she explained.

For more information, call 617-4590.

SMUD directors formally approve expansion to Yolo

The board of directors of the Sacramento Municipal Utilities District voted 5-2 last Thursday to proceed with annexation of West Sacramento, Davis and Woodland (as well as intervening parts of Yolo County) into SMUD's service district.

Officials in those cities and Yolo County had invited SMUD to replace PG&E as utility provider.

A study commissioned by SMUD predicts benefits to both new and current ratepayers from the acquisition.

PG&E opposes the switch, and has said that SMUD underestimates the costs of the change.

Jefferson Blvd.: night-time construction to prevent delays

Art Schroeder, public information officer for the City of West Sacramento, announces that a "potentially very disruptive" phase of the Jefferson Boulevard expansion project draws near, even as the project comes close to completion. Placement of the final asphalt pavement and striping will be done at night, to avoid traffic delays, and these will occur between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. between May 31 and June 7.

Were these operations to be done in the daytime, said Schroeder, traffic delays of up to 90 minutes could result.

But the night-time work could bring local noise trouble for an hour or two at a time, he added.

The construction project reaches from Marshall Road to Stone Boulevard.

For more information, call Andy Gust at (916) 617-4803 during the day or Frank Martin, 871-4154 during the night-time operations.

Information is also available on a recorded line at 617-4554 or at the city's website, http://www.ci.west-sacramento.ca.us.

'Click-it-or-Ticket': check your belt

The West Sacramento Police Department announces it will participate in a nationwide campaign to crack down on people driving without seat belts.

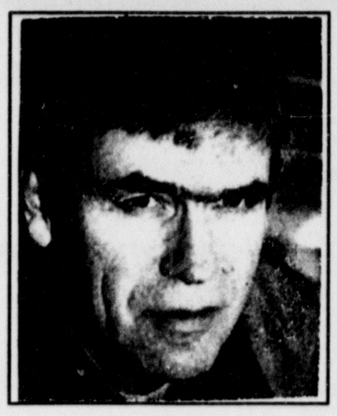

The "Click-It-Or-Ticket" campaign lasts until June 5.

In 2002, reports the department, 1,343 people who were not wearing seatbelts perished in car accidents. Adults not wearing a seatbelt can draw a fine of $89 (first offense), or $191 for repeat-offenders. Adults who are driving children who don't have restraints may face fines of $340 for a first offense or $871 for repeat offenders.

Statewide, seatbelt law compliance is at about 90 percent, reports the office of Police Chief Dan Drummond.

It's important to remember: war is god-awful

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Note: With another Memorial Day Weekend just around the corner, and with the world currently up to its elbows in war and American soldiers still dying almost daily in Iraq, I am reminded of the following column, which first appeared in the News-Ledger more than a decade ago:

My mind recently wandered back to a conversation I had many years ago in a veterans hospital in Martinez, California, with an old, gray-bearded survivor of World War I. At the time, he had really impressed me with his vivid memories of "the war which was going to end all wars." He recalled with great nostalgia everything from the sickening smell of mustard gas to the muddy, rat-infested trenches he had hunkered down in for months at a time back in 1918. He talked at great length about all the horrifying battlefield deaths he had witnessed and how lucky he had been to make it back alive to his beloved home state of Tennessee. He also repeated, with great emotion and clarity, the following two stanzas from his favorite war poem, "In Flanders Fields."

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short time ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders fields.

With his eyes growing wet, he added, "That was the most god-awful war that ever was!"

"It sounds like you had a pretty tough time," I said.

"Sonny," he finally replied, "the sad fact is that it was also the best time of my life."

"I don't understand," I said. "How can the worst time of your life also be the best?"

He sat up a little straighter in his wheelchair and took a deep drag off a cigarette he wasn't supposed to be smoking. "Do you know how many people on this here earth have died in wars?" he asked me. "And just in this century alone?"

I shook my head and said, "No."

"Hell, it only took Hitler about four or five years to knock off 40 million all by himself. Add in my war, Korea, your war, and all the other little wars that are always going on someplace and I bet we're talking over 100 million easy."

The number seemed to mind-boggle him as he opened his tired eyes even wider and slowly rolled his wheelchair closer to my bed.

"I bet you think everyone in their right mind hates war, don't you?" he suddenly asked me.

I thought about it for a moment and then nodded my head, "Yes."

"Well, Sonny, you're wrong. If everyone really hated it, we'd stop doing it, now wouldn't we?"

I smiled and it seemed to upset him.

"I'm serious," he said. "We make war awful damn appealing, and for a lot of guys like me, it's the biggest adventure of our life. Hell, I got to see all kinds of places I'd have never seen otherwise, and everyone treated me like a king when I got back home. Plus the whole time I was overseas, I pretty much got to act as crazy and stupid as I wanted. I guess once people agree that killing each other is okay, then all the other rules get tossed into the crapper, too."

His facial expression turned even more serious and he lowered his voice.

"I don't mind telling war stories, Sonny. Fact is, I love to tell 'em -- there ain't much else to do in this place, anyway. But every generation also owes it to the next to tell some of the truth about war, too. How it ain't all medals and glory -- how damned scary the fighting is -- how all the wrong people always end up getting themselves killed -- how bloody and ugly the dying is -- how it's usually started by a bunch of politicians who don't have to do any of the fighting themselves -- and how few times it really settles a god-damned thing."

He put out his cigarette with his arthritic fingers, field-stripped it, placed the filter in his shirt pocket, and positioned his wheelchair to leave.

"It's been good talking to you, Sonny."

"I really appreciate you stopping by," I said.

"I always make it a point to welcome you Vietnam boys."

"It was very nice meeting you."

"My pleasure," he said sincerely. "And don't forget, somewhere along the line, try to remind a few people in that next generation what you and me learned the hard way -- just how god-awful war really is."

I nodded my head that I would.

Purchasing homes using 100% financing can be tricky when it comes to refi...Let me explain.

Most of the time 100% financing is broken into two loans, usually a 80% LTV first and a 20% LTV second making up the 100% (Combined loan to value or CLTV). The most popular of these variations of this type of loan is a 5/1 ARM for the first and a Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC) for the second. This type of loan does come in many forms, meaning you can get a regular fixed rate for the first and a regular fixed rate for the second so there are other variations of the 100% CLTV that are out there. Most popular RIGHT NOW is the 5/1 ARM along with a 20% HELOC.

Here is the issue. Suppose you purchased the home in an area that is appreciating quickly, and you saw your value increase. So you decided to refinance to take advantage of some potential lower rates, (the rates on your 100% loan aren't really that bad, but if only you could get to 90% LTV, rates would be even better). Here is where lenders sometimes fail to tell you. The HELOC you used to finance the 20% portion of your original purchase needs to be seasoned for 1 year before able to refi. For instance: you purchased your home for $300,000, getting a $240,000 first and a $60,000 HELOC. In six month lets say your property value has increased to $334,000. Now when you wrap those two loans together, they combined equal 90%, but now in doing a 90% refi you would have to take 80% of the now $334,000, creating a new loan amount of $267,200 and creating a new second in the amount of $33,400. Combined these NEW loans equal 90% CLTV, but you would have had to CREATE two new loans. To pay off and create a new HELOC requires a one-year seasoning.....

So before you jump into the 100% CLTV loan, know all the in's and out's before you do it so that you are not caught with a loan that you have to wait to get out of...For information on this loan or any other loan feel free to call me anytime.

River City tennis drops from tourney

From River City High School

In a playoff match forced indoors on a second day of play, the River City High School tennis team dropped an excruciatingly close 3 to 2 decision to Mira Loma last week. The match, a quarterfinal in the Sac-Joaquin Section Division III team championships, was suspended midway through with Mira Loma up 2 matches to 1. RC singles players Brandon Yip and Anna Bouttavong lost their matches, but the Raiders got a 6-3,6-1 win in girls doubles from Vu Tran and Pa Yang. Each school had also won one set in both the mixed doubles and boys doubles matches when rain forced a suspension of play until the following day.

Faced with wet courts and threatening skies, the two schools resumed action the next day at Willow Creek Racquet Club's indoor facility in Citrus Heights. In mixed doubles, RC's John Shofner and Koy Saetern held on to win 1-6,7-5,6-2 to even the overall match at 2-2, but the Raiders boys doubles pair of Judd Jadol and Ou Saejao were unable to dig themselves completely out of a 0-4,0-15 third set hole and lost 5-7,6-0,4-6.

"It was a tremendous effort that came up just a few points short," said Raider Coach Dave Brooks. "We showed a lot of improvement during this season. It was a young team and we still earned a co-championship in the Capital Valley Conference to keep the league-title streak alive at ten straight years. And we also finished 20 and 4 overall. Hopefully all the young players will continue to work hard and we'll be back competing again for a Section championship in 2006."

The San Francisco Giants won the "Battle of the Bay," winning two out of three games this weekend from the boys across the bay. The A's won the opening game on Friday night 8-4 and then the G-Men managed to hang on to win Saturday's contest 3-2 but on Sunday the A's booted their way to another loss. Ex-River Gato Barry Zito took another loss after his infielders botched two late inning grounders to give the swing game to San Francisco.

The Bay Battle set a three-game series record with 128,222 bay area fans showing up to root for their team.

I also heard a rumor that Jerry Rice is very close to signing with the Denver Broncos. He talked with all of his former coaches to try and squeeze out another year in his hall of fame career.

There was a Bonds sighting in SF and its good news for Giants fans! Barry Bonds has been cleared to begin Rehab. training which means Mr. Bonds may suit up to play in late June. The A's are also expecting the return of rookie of the year, Bobby Cosby from his cracked ribs.

Jason Schmidt will come off the DL on Tuesday to pitch against the Dodgers. The Giants are at home for a three game set followed by another weekend set against the first place Padres. The A's are on the road this traveling to Tampa Bay and Cleveland.

Police log

May 16, 9:54 a.m.

On May 15, a 28-year old West Sacramento woman was involved in an accident that caused severe injury to another party. She fled the scene. It was later determined that she had stolen the vehicle that caused the accident, and was re-contacted. She apologized for lying earlier and admitted fleeing after the accident as well as taking the vehicle without permission. She was booked.

May 18, 7:50 a.m.

Following a collision at Beacon and Industrial, a 33-year old Sacramento man fled by the scene. The victim chased him for over a mile before the suspect yielded. After police issued a Miranda warning, the suspect admitted to his actions. He had a suspended driver's license, no insurance and no identification. He was booked.

May 18, 2:01 p.m.

An officer saw a 30-year old transient man prying open the rear window of a vacant residence on Proctor Avenue. The man was also guilty of being within a hundred yards of a home he was restrained from going near. He was arrested.

A 44-year old man violated a protective order preventing him from contacting a particular woman. He was arrested for the violation – for the second time in a week.

May 20, 1:20 p.m.

The owner of a Sacramento Avenue store saw a 52-year old West Sacramento man take a six-pack of beer and leave the store without paying. He told police he didn't want the suspect to return again. An officer contacted the suspect and found him drunk in public, despite being a parolee or probationer with a "no alcohol" clause. The man was arrested.

May 20, 2 p.m.

A 21-year old male transient was contacted by an undercover officer on prostitution detail. The man admitted having used cocaine all night to the undercover officer. He was arrested, and found in possession of 0.4 grams of cocaine and 2.1 grams of marijuana.

two teams in the West.

San Antonio and Phoenix match up very well but I still like Phoenix's chances. Tim Duncan is still recovering from a sprained ankle but if he reinjuries that sore spot the Suns will win the Series in seven games. Phoenix in 7 games!

In the Eastern Conference the Shaq Attack will attempt to lead the Heat into the NBA Finals against the defending champion Detroit Pistons. The Pistons took game 1 in Miami 90-81 with the second game scheduled in Miami on Wednesday night. Miami has the big diesel but Shaq is still limping around the court. This series is also a toss up but I'll go with Larry Brown and the defending champion Pistons in 7.

Boxing News

Sacramento's Rogelio Castaneda Jr. will be featured in promoter Don Chargin's 12-round IBA junior-welterweight title fight at the Arco Arena on Friday night May 27th. Castaneda (18-10-3, 6 KO's) will battle Tomas Barrientes (27-7, 17 KO's) for the Vacant IBA Title. The fight card begins at 6 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the Arco Box Office.

Michael Simms didn't fare to well in his title fight in Russia. Simms lost a unanimous decision to unbeaten Vadim Tokarev. Simms claims he was robbed and a victim of constant low blows by the Russian cruiserweight. I don't know what he expects by arriving in Moscow 3 days before his fight that had 3 Russian judges. You do the Math!

I MAY NOT SELL YOUR HOUSE!

The listing agent sells only about 2% of all listings nationwide. When you list your house with me, I'll try to sell it by myself. But more importantly, I'll just get it sold.

Colleagues in my firm or real estate agents affiliated with a cooperating broker may sell my listings. That's why I work hard to maintain a reputation as being professional and easy to work with. I make it easy for other agents to preview your home, and show it to buyers.

When you select an agent to market your property, you're hiring them not only for their list of potential buyers, but for their ability to tap into the lists of other people in the business. I constantly lobby my competition and urge them to add my listings to homes they show.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF MILDRED MARLENE KORNER

CASE NUMBER PB05-91

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, Mildred Marlene Korner:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Bonnie Duncan in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Bonnie Duncan be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on June 16, 2005, at 8:30 a.m., in Dept. 11, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 812 Court St., Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

Yolo County makes sweet deal with casino-owning tribe

From the Yolo County Taxpayers Association
Dudley Holman, President

Only weeks after Yolo County Board of Supervisors approves a new 18-hole golf course for the Cache Creek Casino, the County announces a "historic" partnership with the tribe to purchase Conaway Ranch. What was equally historic was the county's decision to suspend the Williamson Act, legislation intended to protect farm land from development. This was the second time in Yolo County's history that they suspended the Act.

"Just two weeks after suspending farm land protections to build a golf course, the county announces an historic agreement with the local casino," said Dudley Holman, President of the Yolo County Taxpayers Association. "The odds of this being a coincidence is like the odds of me hitting a hole in one."

"Now I can say I've seen everything," said Holman. "Will the county place slot machines in the county administration building to pay off its budget deficit?"

What are the terms of the agreement? What bearing will this agreement have on future casino expansion? What public services will be impacted? There are too many unanswered questions.

"This dangerous alliance between the county and the casino illustrates the need for public hearings," said Holman. "There is no question that this agreement was hatched behind closed doors. Taxpayers were not well served when its elected officials approved a casino expansion project while negotiating a $60 million purchase of Conaway Ranch."

"The action of Yolo County sets a dangerous precedent for California by using gaming proceeds to seize private property and water rights from an unwilling seller," said Dudley Holman. "California's family farmers now face a new threat to their water supply."

Letters to the Editor

Thanks!

The Southport Elementary School P.T.A. would like to publicly thank the James W. Cameron, Jr. Endowment Fund of the Sacramento Regional Foundation for its generous donation to our school each year. This year our P.T.A. was able to match the foundation's donation and supply computers needed for our school computer lab.

We appreciate our school community, the parents, teachers, and volunteers, and groups like the Cameron Foundation for their continued support.

SOUTHPORT ELEMENTARY P.T.A.
West Sacramento

A special place

In 1976, when it became apparent that the most logical location for my husband and I to begin to raise our young family was West Sacramento, I wasn't exactly ecstatic. Having been raised in a mountain valley in Eastern Oregon with fresh, cold spring water ready from the tap, the thought of drinking, bathing in, or cooking with the then unpalatable water piped to West Sacramento homes was actually depressing. Let's face it, sulphur and chlorine are best left to the chemistry lab.

Another strong advantage of growing up in Eastern Oregon was the small town atmosphere which I eventually came to appreciate about West Sacramento. Not only were we surrounded by my husband's family when I moved here, but it seemed like everyone in the community knew and cared about each other and they all went out of their way to make me feel wanted and comfortable.

Although West Sacramento is rapidly changing its profile to include such cultural cliches as Starbucks, at my son's wedding in his Southport home last weekend, I was once again reminded that it has truly taken this village to grow our four children into what we hope are compassionate and constructive citizens.

Our daughter, Carrie, has benefited from the warmth and humor of Guyburt and Jan Pierce since she was four years old. Our sons Ty and Paul were practically raised by Greg and Kathe Potnick. And our youngest son, Kyle, was in fact actually raised by our next door neighbors, Bob and Linda Bianchi! We once felt compelled to give them dinner at the Pheasant Club when we realized he was spending more time at their house than his own.

In addition to our kids' "other parents", they have also enjoyed the support of numerous West Sacramento teachers and coaches over the years. My daughter learned a number of life lessons along with her dance lessons at Elaine's Dance Studio. My oldest son's tennis coach, Dave Brooks, not only provided him with a great role model in discipline and commitment, but he is also somewhat responsible for last weekend's wedding, having paired Ty and his future bride, Douangchanh, on the River

Q. I've been told by a friend that an English newspaper reported that one of my favorite shows, "Touched by an Angel," will be coming back to television. I haven't read anything about it in my (local) paper or heard anything on TV. Can you tell me when it will be back, and if Roma Downey and Della Reese will come back with it? — Fran K.

A. Producer Mark Burnett, who has mounted a number of reality shows on TV, including "The Apprentice" and Martha Stewart's upcoming series, is said to be very close to finalizing a deal on a new reality program inspired by "Touched by an Angel." His project partner is also his longtime domestic partner, "Angel" star Roma Downey. She and Della Reese are expected to be a big part of the unscripted show, which will be called "Giving Hope."

Q. My friend and I have a question we're not sure you can answer. About a year ago I read an interview with actor Michael Moriarty ("Law and Order," "The 4400") in which he didn't deny the interviewer's question that he's descended from Professor Moriarty in the Sherlock Holmes stories. Is it true or not? — Tricia McL.

A. The Professor Moriarty character in the Sherlock Holmes works is fictional. However, the author, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is said to have based his major characters — such as Holmes, Dr. Watson and Holmes' equally brilliant brother, Mycroft, who worked for the British secret service — on real people. He did the same, apparently, with Professor Moriarty, whose real-life alter ego was said to have been a genius who dabbled on the dark side.

As for actor Michael Moriarty, when I asked him how he felt about having the same name as the classical villain of 19th-century literature, he said, "I have no problem with it," adding, "and if people want to believe (that we're related) that's fine with me."

Q. How did Jane Fonda and Jennifer Lopez really get along (when they made "Monster-in-Law")? I read in one paper that they hardly spoke to each other, and in another paper that they liked each other. — Sharon Z.

Q. What's the story about a relationship between Jim Carrey and Jennifer Lopez that they've never talked about? — Art D.

A. To Sharon — They liked each other. According to my set-siders, Fonda and Lopez sometimes had lunch together and met each other's visitors. All told, everyone got along.

To Art — Jim Carrey got to show off his comic brilliance on the early 1990s show "In Living Color," which starred David Alan Grier and the Wayans siblings — Keenan, Marlon, Damon, Shawn and Kim. Jennifer Lopez joined the show's dance troupe, the Fly Girls, in the third season. That's the "past" Carrey and J.Lo share.

CRITIC'S CORNER

By D.N.A Smith

"House of Wax"

Running time: 105 minutes
MPAA rating: R

The only truly shocking moment in "House of Wax" is a scene played outside a gas station in the seemingly deserted town of Ambrose, La. The price for gas: $1.19. I almost bolted for the door on my way to a cheap fill-up, when I realized it was only a movie. And a boring, poorly made one at that.

"House of Wax" stars Elisha ("24") Cuthbert and Paris ("Attention Ho") Hilton and a bunch people you've never heard of playing rowdy, extremely stupid college kids who become the hapless victims of a pair of bat-guano crazy twins who kidnap, torture and turn their victims into wax dummies. In the case of Paris Hilton, it is hard to discern the difference.

When I said the movie was boring, I wasn't just being snarky. It takes nearly an hour (more than half the movie's runtime) before the first victim gets waxed. And nearly 80 minutes before he audience gets to witness the one thing they paid 10 bucks to see: Paris Hilton getting an ax handle driven through her skull. After thunderous applause and cheers from the audience, things calm down as we all collectively fantasize about that buck-nineteen a gallon gas sign we saw earlier.

I can't think of one single redeeming quality about this movie. "House of Wax" has got to be the dumbest film of all time. Not only do the characters do incredibly idiotic things, but even the premise of the film challenges the limits of incredulity. I mean, there's a house made entirely of wax sitting in rural Louisiana, and it hasn't melted a bit. Have you ever been to Louisiana? There ain't no hot like Louisiana hot. It's so hot in Louisiana that folks have to go to Mississippi to sweat.

TEST DRIVE

by Greg Zyla

2005 Suzuki Forenza EX
Base price: $16,949
Price as tested: $16,949

This week we test-drive the Forenza EX. Suzuki's upscale compact that comes delivered for just $16,949. Unlike the LX and S models, the EX offers an "everything under one roof" car at a price that is extremely affordable.

Now in it second year, Suzuki's premium compact sedan still offers the qualities that attract consumers, especially its 22-mpg city and 30-mpg highway EPA ratings.

Outwardly, Forenza makes a nice aesthetic statement, combining a stylish front end with hints of chrome and matching color trim. The standard 195/55R/15-inch tires look good on alloy wheels, while the power sunroof is another noteworthy standard feature. Add built-in fog lamps, and you have a pretty sporty package that will look good in anyone's driveway.

Under the hood sits a 2-liter, double-overhead-cam, 16-valve, inline four-cylinder engine that develops 126 horsepower and 131 pound-feet of torque. Although it offers sufficient power for its lightweight mass, the four-speed automatic pulls performance down a bit. Last year we tested a five-speed manual Forenza, and we recommend it over the automatic if peppier driving is desired.

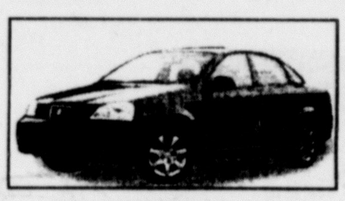

The top-of-the-line EX comes only with the automatic, so if you want the manual transmission you'll have to settle for a lesser-equipped LX or S model. (The S Model starts at only $13,449. Check for dealer incentives for as much as $1,500 available on all Forenzas).

All three Forenza models have power-assisted steering and four-wheel disc brakes, a definite bonus as you often see dated drum brakes in the rear on "lesser priced" cars. Not so with Forenza, and we applaud Suzuki in this area. However, if you want ABS, it will cost another $500 and is the only option available on the EX model.

The cabin includes all expected safety items, plus some features you'd see only on more expensive vehicles. Included with the EX are leather-trimmed seats, air conditioning, cruise, AM/FM/CD/cassette audio with eight speakers, tilt steering with remote stereo controls, driver seat-height adjuster, leather-wrapped steering wheel and shift knob, 60/40 split folding rear seats, floor mats and all the powers, including the aforementioned power tilt/slide moonroof.

Add other items like remote power trunk release, remote keyless entry and heated remote power mirrors, and you've got a lot of car for just $16,949. Forenza is way ahead of competitor models when it comes to standard features, and even delivers the car to the dealer for free so there is no destination charge.

The ride is good, thanks to an independent MacPherson strut-type front suspension and an independent dual-link rear setup. Gas-pressurized shock absorbers help the ride in all areas, especially cornering and traversing those twisty country roads.

2005 Suzuki Forenza EX

Likes: Looks, ride and loads of "extras" for one low price

Dislikes: More power needed, no traction control available.

Overall, Forenza still matches up nicely to the Hyundai Elantra, Honda Civic and Nissan Sentra, although all three are tough competitors. The Korean-built Forenza continues to improve in all areas, with well-built cars replacing the former "bad reputations" of Korean-made vehicles in the '80s and '90s. Suzuki feels so confident that it offers a 100,000-mile, seven-year transferable powertrain limited warranty and a 24/7/365 roadside-assistance program. The engine comes from Australia, so there is much international sharing in the production of every Forenza.

Important numbers include a wheelbase of 102.4 inches, curb weight of 2,756 pounds, 14.5 gallon fuel capacity (regular unleaded) and 12.4 cubic-feet of cargo space.

The Forenza EX is worthy of a strong 8.5 on a scale of one to 10.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

ROASTING BRINGS OUT BEST IN TOMATOES

Florida is harvesting its tomatoes, and now we can find this luscious domestic food in the veggie stalls. If you haven't discovered that roasting brings out their ultimate flavor, do try it. Roasting caramelizes the natural sugars, and heat increases the lycopene with its healthful benefits.

Florida tomatoes are shipped almost fully ripened, and if you keep them stem-side up for a couple of days, they will reach their maximum color and maturity.

Here are two hefty sandwiches that will appease the heartiest appetite. The first layers cheese, turkey and roasted tomato on a roll and is finished in the oven. Label it a hero, hoagie, submarine, grinder or po' boy, it's a warm, comforting sandwich. Next is a kind of French toast treatment of a cheese and tomato sandwich baked for an unusual treat.

ROASTED TOMATO AND TURKEY HERO

- 1 pound fully ripened fresh Florida tomatoes, thinly sliced (2 large)
- 2 tablespoons brown mustard
- 6 thin slices lean ham or turkey (about 6 ounces)
- 2 Slices reduced-fat Swiss cheese (2 ounces)
- 2 hero rolls (about 6 inches long), split lengthwise

Preheat oven to 425 F. On a baking sheet, place tomatoes in a single layer; roast on lowest rack until tender and golden, about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, spread mustard on bottom halves of rolls; top with ham and cheese slices. Arrange tomato slices on top halves of rolls. Place sandwich halves in a single layer on baking sheet; bake until outsides of rolls are crusty and cheese is melted, about 3 minutes. Carefully place top halves with tomatoes on top of bottom halves; cut sandwiches in half and serve. Makes 2 servings.

BAKED TOMATO-CHEESE SANDWICHES

- 2 large (1 pound) fresh Florida tomatoes
- 8 slices firm-textured white bread
- 6 teaspoons Dijon-style honey mustard
- 4 slices (1 ounce each) reduced-fat Swiss cheese
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups lowfat (1 percent) milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground red pepper

Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Core one of the tomatoes and cut into 8 slices; set aside. Lightly butter an 8-inch-square baking pan. On a work surface, place 4 slices of bread; spread each with 1 teaspoon of the mustard; arrange cheese over mustard, cutting cheese to fit shape of bread. Top with reserved tomato slices; cover each with 1 slice bread. Place sandwiches in prepared pan. In a medium bowl whisk together eggs, milk, salt, red pepper and remaining 2 teaspoons mustard; pour over sandwiches. Cover with plastic wrap; refrigerate for at least 2 hours, or overnight. Preheat oven to 350 F. Bake until egg mixture is nearly set, about 30 minutes. Core and slice remaining tomato into 8 slices; top each sandwich with 2 tomato slices. Bake until a knife inserted near center comes out clean, 10 to 15 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Makes 4 portions.

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... I can't tell you much about Brad Pitt's private life at the moment, but I do know he will be co-starring with Cate Blanchett in "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button." It's based on a story by F. Scott Fitzgerald about an elderly man who gets younger as the years go by. (Now wouldn't THAT be wonderful!) However he meets with complications when at age 50 he falls in love with a 30-year-old lady. And incidentally, to Jonas G. of Syracuse, N.Y., Cate is not British. She was born and raised in Australia.

Marlon Brando

There have always been two schools of thought about auctioning the personal items of famous folk after death. There are those who feel it's an invasion of privacy, and those who yearn to own something personal belonging to an idol. Well, those who yearn will have a chance to own something that belonged to Marlon Brando when more than 200 items go on the block June 30. Among them are his "Godfather" scripts with all his personal markings in the margins. Christie's of New York is handling the auction.

Probably one of THE best actresses on the screen today, Meryl Streep, is set to star in "The Devil Wears Prada," an adaptation of the wildly funny book by Lauren Weisberger. In case you haven't read the book, it's about a young woman who goes to New York to work for a magazine and an all-powerful editor (played by Streep). You'll just have to wait for the rest of the plot (or read the book).

Matthew Perry has purchased a condo near the Sunset Strip. There's nothing particularly newsworthy about that. It's the "go-withs" that provide the interest. There's a view to downtown Los Angeles from one window, and from another he can see the Pacific Ocean — each about 15 miles away. THEN there's a bathtub with a waterfall, a built-in sound system, walk-in closets, a black goatskin rug, sheets, towels and art. It also has an 8-foot-wide patio. He should be very comfortable, wouldn't you say?

It just can't be avoided. Paris continues to make news in every department. Her private life with lover Paris, her TV capers, and now she's a movie star with "House of Wax" up there on the big screen. She was very much in evidence at the preem screening and after party. AND the best part was when her character is killed, and the audience applauded and applauded AND applauded. Hard to tell whether it was for the character herself, or for the blond Hilton heiress.

Interesting chatting with a group of publicists about the biz. This time, the subject was "the greatest movie star of all time." The female, agreed on by all, was Greta Garbo, with Marilyn Monroe a close second. This does not mean ACTING. Just a MOVIE STAR. Rudolph Valentino came in first in the male department, with Clark Gable second. It's always fun to find a theater featuring old films and to see all these fabulous faces.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Poolside patrons at a Palm Springs hotel were treated to a rare sight. Gwyneth Paltrow and beautiful baby Apple enjoying a splash in the waters. ... And momism certainly seems to be "the thing" these days in the Hollywoods. Rumors round that both Reese Witherspoon and Kate Hudson might just be expecting again. ... And at the risk of being redundant, I'm told that in the old days, mommyhood was always a deep, dark secret. ... Angelina Jolie doesn't spend all her time making glamour headlines. She's a U.N. Goodwill Ambassador and recently met with Pakistan's prime minister in Islamabad to thank him for hosting Afghan refugees. ... The Sinatra sisters are arguing over which picture of their father should go on a U.S. postage stamp. ... And I suppose you know by now it's to be a boy for Britney.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Steve McQueen, who was once voted the 31st greatest movie star of all time by Premiere magazine, once said in an interview, "In my own mind, I'm not sure that acting is something for a grown man to be doing."

• The Language of Pasta: In Italian, the word "linguine" means, literally, "little tongues." "Ravioli" means "bits and pieces," "penne" means (inexplicably) "quill pens," "spaghetti" means "little strings," "fettuccine" means "small ribbons," and — get this — "vermicelli" means "little worms." Ugh.

• Half of all the GIs who died in World War I weren't killed by the enemy — the troops were decimated by an outbreak of the Spanish flu.

• The first inauguration in U.S. history, in May of 1789, took place in New York City. The featured entertainment (after the swearing-in, of course) was a huge display of fireworks. So many people came out to see the fireworks that when it was over, the streets were too crowded for George Washington's carriage. He ended up walking home.

Measure K Report

March 31, 2005

Measures J & K
In November 2002, West Sacramento voters approved two measures that established a sales tax override that was intended to supplement the city's general fund for general government purposes. Measure J was an advisory measure that described the City Council's conceptual plan on how the money should be spent, and Measure K was the measure that actually implemented the sales tax override. The initial amount generated from the ½% override was estimated to be $5 million annually. Now it appears that we will not reach this level of the revenue until IKEA has been open for a year or so.

How Measure K Works
Measure K specified that the ½% override would consist of ¼% that would cease after ten years, and ¼% that would continue indefinitely. The funds generated by the override have been divided into two categories: a base allocation and a capital allocation. The base allocation is funded with the ongoing ¼%, and the capital allocation is funded with the ¼% that will cease after ten years. The base allocation is to be used for ongoing programs and activities; the capital allocation is to be used for specific projects. In the case of capital allocation, bonding and borrowing against the projected annual cash flow has enabled a larger amount of funding to be available at the onset of the ten-year period.

This Report
Measure K also included the requirement that "the citizens shall receive annually a published report of revenues and disbursements following a public hearing." A public hearing for that purpose was held on May 11, 2005. The purpose of this report is to comply with publishing requirement and to present the appropriations and projects that have resulted from Measure K, with reference to the direction of the advisory measure.

Overview
In the information presented below, Allocation refers to allocation of Measure K funds pursuant to Measure J, along with revenues from other sources, while Actual refers to actual disbursement of those funds.

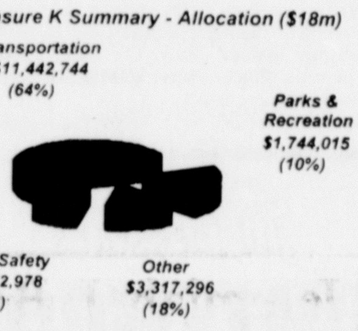

As the graph for Allocations below shows, Public Safety receives 8% of the revenue for programs, including additional police and fire personnel, new equipment and facility repairs.

Transportation programs, receiving 64% of the revenue, include expanded street sweeping and minor street maintenance. Major projects in this category include sidewalk repair, traffic safety upgrades, bike lane striping and resurfacing of many residential streets.

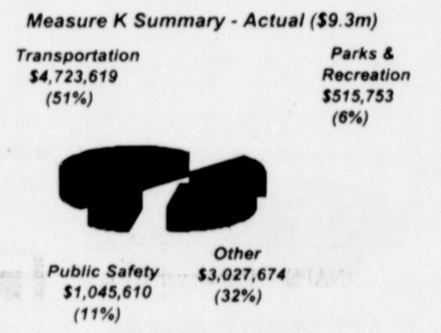

Parks and Recreation, with 10% of the revenue, offers expanded after-school and childcare programs, and provides for certain facilities at various community sites, including restrooms, playgrounds and irrigation improvements in parks, skate park, and fishing dock improvements.

Finally, the Other category, accumulating miscellaneous programs and projects, receives the remaining 18% of the revenue. In this category are funds for: the water service charge reduction; purchase of property for the expanded Turner Library; a bus and future light-rail center; and seed money for a new senior center.

Measure K Summary - Allocation ($18m)

Measure K Summary - Actual ($9.3m)

LETTERS from p. 7

City High School tennis courts as doubles partners when they were just teenagers. Dave's parents, longtime West Sacramento residents Don and Linda Brooks, also gave Ty his first real job at their pharmacy. Our middle son's first art lessons were from West Sacramento water colorist Betty Sokolich, and our youngest son is now studying to become a teacher because of some of the fine educators he had while attending local schools in the Washington Unified School District, especially RCHS teachers Brandon Duff and Marc Leffler.

West Sacramento may have added another Blockbuster video store and the Nugget Market, and I guess an IKEA and a Wal-Mart are on the way, too, but at last weekend's gathering of so many of our West Sacramento friends, I was reminded that we need to hold on tight to our best asset, our sense of community, as long as we can. And the water doesn't taste funny anymore, either.

Immigration laws

I recently heard California State Senator Tom McClintock on KFBK am radio, with host Mark Williams, relating what happened during the California State Transportation Committee meeting and their approval of Gil Cedillo's latest efforts to help illegal aliens fade into the background and hide. His claim that he's trying to comply with the federal "Real ID Act" is based on a misrepresentation of the law and its intent.

The best question I heard that night was essentially: "How does law enforcement identify someone they pull over (which they're required to by law, as well as for safety issues) if the only photo-affixed permission slip for driving they have issued to them by this state is not valid for identification purposes?" Turning such a permission slip into a defacto ID, whether by executive fiat or unelected bureaucratic policy may be pro-other countries, but it is also dishonest and against the intent, safety, and will of the American people.

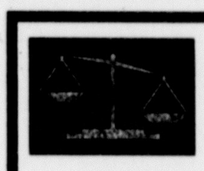

We, the people, are becoming incensed at, and impatient with, the arrogance and gall of the apologists and activists for illegal alien law breakers, as well as the criminals who hire and protect them against America's best interests and safety. Ask yourself this: Would you feel better if, for example, the terrorists who use a state issued non-ID, have insurance on the vehicle they've filled with explosives and nuclear material? How about the cheap and expendable labor exploiters, or the citizens and/or cop-killing gang-bangers? Feel better now?

She received a ribbon, a placement certificate that was presented at a Yolo County Board of Supervisors' meeting, and a bookstore certificate.

Esmerelda took third place in the grades 5-6 division and Supervisor Mike McGowan told her, "I am proud of you and of how well you have represented the West Sacramento community."

Relying on the theme "Use Water Wisely -- It's a Way of Life," local children including home schooled from kindergarten through eighth grade were invited to submit posters. Over 500 children from throughout Yolo County participated.
